Commissioners Carolyn N. Ketchel and Trey Goodwin Sworn in Tuesday

Two new commissioners were sworn in by Judge Terry Ketchel on Tuesday, November 18, 2014. Commissioner Carolyn N. Ketchel, District 2 and Commissioner Trey Goodwin, District 4 took their seats in today's Board of County Commissioner meeting.

In a unique situation, Commissioner Ketchel was sworn into the Office of County Commission by her husband, Circuit Judge Terry Ketchel. Commissioner Trey Goodwin was accompanied by many family members and many friends and supporters were in attendance overall.

Commissioner Ketchel states, "I look forward to a new spirit of cooperation between legislative, county, constitutional offices and city officials to address the needs of community. Together we can solve the issues facing Okaloosa County and citizens." Commissioner Goodwin had this to say: "I am very, very excited, also honored and humbled to serve the folks in Okaloosa County and work with those people who work hard for the citizens every day here at the county – I look forward to it, and also working with fellow commissioners."

Today's county commission meeting, to include swearing in of new county commissioners, can be viewed on the county website at www.okaloosaf.com, and will air on Cox channel 6 beginning Wednesday, at 7 p.m. and Thursdays at 10 a.m. The swearing-in video can also be viewed on the county's YouTube page at CountyOkaloosatv or on the county Facebook page at Okaloosa Board of County Commissioners.
