PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

Water conservation and quality management is a pressing concern for Florida's residents and legislative decision makers. While the state's human population continues to grow, the potable water supply remains the same. Water Management Districts have plans in place to shift all landscape irrigation applications to alternative sources. In an effort to address these issues UF/IFAS Okaloosa County Extension in cooperation with the Florida Irrigation Society will be presenting information on ways to improve sprinkler system efficiency and protect water resources from contamination on Wednesday, January 22nd from 8:00 to 4:30 pm at the Niceville Community Center. Industry vendors will be available for hands-on demonstration and product questions.

Registration is available on-line at <http://watersummit2014.eventbrite.com> or by calling 850-689-5850. Cost is $15 if preregistering, $20 at the door.
